SECRETS OF THE TOILET.

Altogether Unnecessary to Allow

"Hubby" to See Mysteries. "It is a great mistake to let one's usband into tollet secrets," sighed a oman who has been brought face to face with the certain knowledge of her spouse's admiration for pretty women. The wife is pretty-much prettier, in fact, than any rival he has forced upon ner-and she is sweettempered. She probably has her share of faults, but the man she married is sufficiently gallant to declare that they do not exist, so It is safe to say that they cannot be serious ones. Yet the fact remains that she has not been able to hold the man who used to be devoted to her.

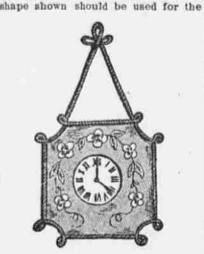

I am inclined to believe that she has struck the keynote of her domesthe trouble. The intimacy of family life discloses many homely facts, as the brother of the bachelor girl said when he found her beautifying before the mirror of her dressing table. She had left the door of her bedroom wide open, and called to her brother as he passed through the hall. She had tucked her hair into a rubber cap, the kind used for sea bathing, and was smearing her face with cold cream to the broad band of rubber which hid Misses Bertha and Eisie Maxwell the hair line, and every bit of prettipess had been taken from her face.

The brother was a married man, but had never seen anything like the spectacle before him. His wife was much too clever to allow him to suspect that her charms owed anything to art; so his sister smiled a bit when he said, emphatically: "If my wife ever looked like you in your present plight, sis, I would divorce her." He took a deal of pride in his wife's fresh face and general air of smartness, and had not the smallest idea of the unceasing care they required. How should he, when all beautifying was done while he toiled for the family bread and

TO HOLD THE WATCH.

Contrivance of Great Utility for the Hours of Night.

This novel little holder for a watch is intended for hanging upon the wall by the side of a bed, and into which and be easily seen when required. A piece of stout cardboard of the foundation, and in the center a circular hole cut to fit the watch it is intended for. The cardboard can be covered with any pretty piece of silk or brocade on which has been worked some pretty little floral design. It is entirely edged with cord, and there is a loop at the top by which it may be hung upon the wall. At the back of the circular space, cut in the center, is sewn a small pocket of wash leather, into which the watch may be placed; the lower sketch of the back view explains this.

Fancy Work for Nerves.

There is an epidemic of fancy work over the land. Women who vowed they would never embroider or crochet are doing both.

Every one does fancy work. see women knitting cravats on the train, and at informal dinners it is done between courses or at coffee

The doctors say that fancy work, quietly done, is an excellent remedy for nervousness. They claim that the busy woman who is rushed through the day hours should learn to pick up fancy work at night and keep at it while she is talking.

The slow, definite preciseness of it soothing. It keeps the mind from thinking and the thoughts from running around in a distracted circle.

Two Smart Ties.

Smart and easily made ties are formed from strips of Irish crochet insertion about three inches wide, and long enough to tie in a four-in-hand or small bow with long ends. The ends of these ties are finished in tiny ball fringe. Sometimes the entire length of the tie is bound in a bias strip of white or colored silk a quarter of an inch wide.

More serviceable, but quite as easily made, are long ties of black or any desired color of satin-finished soft slik or taffeta, about two inches wide and finished with pointed ends.

These ties hang below the bust line, and are fastened at the throat with knit slides of embroidery slik the same color.

Sounds Which Carry at Sea. Examinations by naval experts in wireless telephony as to the sound which will carry the greatest distance at sea develops that a siren under 72 pounds of steam pressure will emit blast which may be heard 40 miles. Next comes the steam whistle, the sound of which is carried 20 miles. Among the softest sounds which carry a considerable distance is the whisfling buoy installed by the lighthouse board, which has frequently been heard a distance of 15 miles.

Kloto, Japan, is a most interesting place, inasmuch as it is about most Japanese of Japanese cit-The touch of the foreigner has not been felt there, as it has in many of the other places of the land of the Mikado.

On approaching the hotels you ire met by Japanese servants who bow to the ground upon receiving you, and you are conducted to your apartment with a hundred other bows, as the servants in charge do all in their power to make you fees that your least word is to them a mmand to be joyously obeyed.

There are no glass windows in the Japanese house and when the weathor is too chilly to permit of your being out on the veranda you fee sadly imprisoned, indeed, not being JAPANESE MOTHER AND CHILD able to look from your apartments unless you break out a paper window pane, which, of course, would not be permissible.

One of the most interesting Japanese temples in Kloto is Gion Chiosiu, for it was the temple assigned to the foreign envoys when they made their first visit to the mikado in the year 1868. It is a fine building, surrounded by splendidly kept grounds, upon which are many smaller temples and houses for the It was here that the Dutch envoys were kept when they were brought through the country to pay their annual tribute to the mikado for the privilege of trading with Japan. They were literally kept as prisoners and suffered all sorts of indignities. Before the mikado and his court-the empress and her ladies being secreted behind great screens-these poor Dutchmen were forced to dance and sing and "cut up capers," so to speak, L/ way of

One rides through the narrow and picturesque streets of Kioto in a jinrikishas drawn by fleet-footed Japanese. These well-built, athletic fellows, can run ten hours on the stretch, and at the termination of the journey feel quite as unfatigued as the occupant (be he a foreigner) of the jinrkishas,

The Japanese are not fond of rain, and during a shower the streets are deserted by all who can put off going out under cloudy skies. Those who are obliged to wander forth in the rain go on high clogs, wear large paper hats and carry over them paper umbrellas.

Kioto boasts of the finest jugglers and theatres in the land. From here many of the great st Japanese entertainers are produced fofr other Japanese cities, as well as for European countries and America.

The cooking at the hotels was found to be very well done and appetizing, and after one has become accustomed to the absence of highly seasoned and rich foods, such as one finds in England, France and America, the Japanese dinner is quite a relishable thing and always a nutritious one

A Fish Story.

A pet water spaniel belonging to a Clear Lake, Ia., fisherman is the central figure in a fish story of unusual interest. The fisherman had driven to a distant and quiet shore of the take to engage in the sport of fishing for suckers, being careful to throw back all the game fish caught. The water spaniel was a member of the party, and after the man had ensconced himself upon the bank, the dog proceded to play about in the water frightening away the prospective suckers. Commands were of no avail, and the fisherman to insure quiet, tied the dog to a wheel of his buggy with an extra fish line already baited. The fisherman absorbed by the fascination of waiting for a bite, falled to observe that the dog had escaped until the animal had reached the water. An angry shout only served to frighten the dog farther out into the lake. carrying around his neck the fish line with spoon book attached. When he finally swam back to shore a five pound pike was on the hook, and he proudly dragged it to his master. Tae latter found it too badly injured by the hook to be brown back into the lake, and was able to go home with a fine pike for supper without being guilty of violating the fish laws of Iowa .- Rockester Herald.

JONES PUT UP A SUBSTITUTE

And Incidentally Got Reputation as After-Dinner Speaker.

"If there is one thing I hate," remarked Mr. Jones, "It is after-dinner speeches. Well, once I found myself. at a big banquet, where I knew very few of those present. To my amazement and horror, toward the end of the festivities, the toastmaster fixed his eyes upon me.

"'We have with us to-night-' I heard the old, hated formula roll out unctuously from his lips-and then my own name-'Mr. Jones, the wellknown, etc.

Awful Possibility That Loomed Before

Six-Year-Old Jackie.

Six-year-old Jackie's mother believed that absolute truthfulness was the only rock on which to build that youthful gentleman's character, and the consistent working out of this principle did away, of course, with belief in all such things as fairies, Santa Claus, and other illusions dear to childish hearts, and they became instead "make-believe" games, Santa Claus in particular being a pet "joke" between his mother and himself. Jackie came in from play one aftersoon much excited and concerned. "Mother, Jimmie Norton believes there is a really and truly Santa Claus. He says he is sure that Santa Claus does come down the chimney. He wouldn't believe me at all when I told him it was just a joke," with rising anxiety.

Jackie's mother was somewhat nonplused. "Well, son," she temporized, 'perhaps Jimmie's mother will tell him the joke some time soon, and

"Oh, I hope she will," broke in Jackie, forgetting his manners in his earnestness, "because, you know, if she don't, when Jimmie has little boys of his own they won't ever get any Christmas presents."

About Happiness. There is no more beneficial tonic than good, hearty laughter. It inflates the lungs and has a magic effect upon the system. Giggling is not laughing, and it is a habit that brings wrinkles and soon spoils even a pretty face. Why not laugh? It improves the appearance and makes one popular. There is nothing to be glum over, and, if there is, being glum will not help it. Be happy and bright and everyone will wish to help you. Substitute for Confetti, The time may be opportune for an appeal to inventors to consider the urgent need there is for some substitute for confetti. To admit that rice was bad is not to make the substitute any better. It is comparatively painless when thrown, but the absolute impossibility of removing it from clothes or carpets without picking it off by individual particles should be enough of itself to condemn it in the
